Blockchain is penetrating Indonesia more voraciously than other ASEAN countries. Indonesia is setting its sights on blockchain as an enabler of increased efficiency and greater transparency with applications currently being explored in areas and industries that include e-voting and agriculture.

Indonesia's startup community attracted at least $3 billion in venture capital in 2017-18, indicating the growth among the tech community. Now blockchain startups are increasingly prevalent and they could further bolster Indonesia's position as a rising regional tech hub.

The 3rd edition of BlockJakarta 2019 blockchain conference will explore the opportunities and challenges in blockchain & also project Indonesia as ASEAN biggest blockchain market. Senior government officers and industry experts will converge on 2nd May to discuss the implementations of blockchain in Indonesia.
